

Amy Landis

Project Executive, DPR Construction

Amy Landis is a Project Executive at DPR Construction, where she provides leadership and strategic oversight for projects within the Advanced Technology core market. Based in DPR's Charlotte -Greenville Business Unit, she works closely with project teams and clients to deliver complex, mission critical facilities while serving as the local Advanced Technology Core Market Leader and a member of DPR's National AT Core Market Team.

With more than two decades of experience in project management and critical facilities, Amy brings expertise in strategy, client relationships, and operational excellence. Prior to joining DPR Construction, she spent approximately 20 years at Wells Fargo, where she held leadership roles supporting the technology division, including Relationship Manager, and leader of the Critical Facilities Project Management Office. Her background in project management and 7x24 operations informs her ability to guide high performing teams and deliver successful outcomes.

Amy holds a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Interior Design from Winthrop University and has remained actively engaged in the mission critical industry through professional organizations such as 7x24 Exchange, where she serves on the Carolinas Chapter board of directors and the WiMCO community.
